Since 1 January 1994 the Club has been graced with some notable guest speakers and great events. Michael Whitney started the 'ball rolling' in January followed by Premier John Fahey opening the Sporting Gallery.

The Australian Rugby Union officially handed back the World Cup to the World Organisation, in the Club Rooms and the Black Tie Boxing event reached capacity. Mark Weeks 'rolled them in the aisles' at the Epicurean dinner in March and John Quayle explained why Rugby League is marketed so well. The April guest speaker, Robert de Castella is a household name around the world.

EPICUREAN

The Epicurean Club held its first dinner for 1994 on 26 February 1994. Eighty members and guests enjoyed a fantastic evening of fine food, excellent wine and good company.

Ian Neill, President of the Epicurean Club, compered the evening and introduced Mr Chris Hancock, the Chief Executive of Rosemont Estates. Chris Hancock was very entertaining and gave us an insight to the wine industry and the achievements of his company. The selection of the wines that Rosemont Estates presented to us for tasting bore testament to their world wide success and expanding markets. We enjoyed their:

Rosemont Estate

1991 Vintage Brut Champagne
1990 Show Reserve Semillon
1993 Estate Chardonnay
1992 Shiraz

1990 Show Reserve Cabernet Sauvignon
1986 Show Reserve Noble Semillon
1984 Tawney Port

All the wines are competitively priced and available through the Club by contacting Peter Cross, Functions Manager, on 264 6111. The Club Chef, Mark Wilson, prepared a menu befitting the Epicureans. We enjoyed a choice of two entrees, two main courses, dessert and cheese. The wine flowed freely and lively conversation was enjoyed by all.

Our fellow Club member, Mr Mark Weeks, was introduced to the gathering and he proceeded to entertain us with his unique style of satirical humour. What a gifted and talented musician he is. Thank you

Mark for helping us to have an evening that will be recorded as one of our very special nights.

A presentation was made to our special guests with a polished wooden shield with the Club coat of arms beautifully crafted and appropriately engraved. They were presented to Chris Hancock and Mark Weeks as a memento of the evening.

Towards the end of the evening the guests were invited on a tour of the second floor by Brian Emery. It seemed that nearly everyone took the advantage to show their wives and friends the superb facilities we are able to enjoy at Tattersall's.

The next evening will be held on Friday 13 May 1994 and full details will appear in the next newsletter.

GOLF

The Golf Club began its 1993/1994 campaign with a superb day at Elanora Country Club back in November 1993.

The 1994 season tee off was the coastal layout at St Michael's on a blistering day that tested all competitors. The day was won by a visitor Mr J Oltvani of the Bayview Club with 36 stableford points. The March event will have been held at NSW Golf Club and be followed by a dinner back at Tatt's.

We are fortunate to have scheduled some of the finest courses in the Sydney and country areas which will include Camden, Lakeside, Monash, Cypress Lakes (Pokolbin, Hunter Valley) and Leura. The Hunter and Blue Mountains expeditions scheduled for later in the year will be held on Fridays and members may like to take advantage of these locations to organise a weekend which could include spouses and would centre around golf on Saturday and Sunday and possibly a group booking at a local restaurant for some fine dining.

Handicaps

Remember even without an official Australian Golf Handicap you are most welcome at the Golf Days. The handicapper (who shall remain nameless) is fair but cruel, will be watching with keen interest and will certainly 'square up' at following events.

DINING ROOM

Black Tie Boxing

The first Tattersall's Black Tie Boxing Night was held at the Club on Friday 18 March 1994. 200 members and guests packed the Club Bar for pre-bout drinks and then up to the Clubroom for the fights.

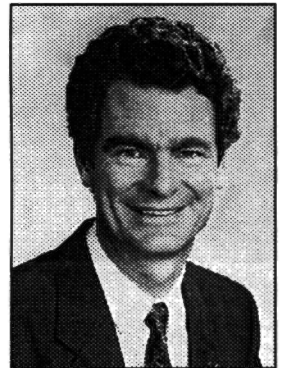

After three bouts members split up into the dining room and bistro for dinner and then back into the Club Room for the last four bouts.

After the fights it was back to the bar. At midnight one member was showing his guests the Athletic Department and pointed to the pool saying "you can tell it's the pool it's got water in it".

During the night $5,000 was raised for the Commonwealth Games team. There will be another boxing night soon, so watch the Newsletter for upcoming dates.

CITY LIVING 2000

As a member of a fine club such as Tattersalls I consider it is vitally important to remain informed. I am often asked questions about the phenomena of city living. We have a wonderful city and why not consider living in it? The Black Tie Boxing Night was a major success, particularly with the boxers. They appreciated the facilities during the night and offered to return whenever the Club conducted another event.

HISTORY CORNER

The following extracts from the Club history shows that 60 years ago we discussed music in the clubrooms, calling the card, phones in the club, the Archibald Fountain and women using the pool.

"Tattersall's reputation as hosts to the world meant increasing claims on their services. On 22 October, 1934 the Director of the Royal Tour requested honorary membership for the Royal entourage, which was granted as a matter of course. There were so many calls on the Club's entertainment facilities that some additions had to be made. The radio gramophone music in the dining room was updated and the Personality Trio engaged to play there on Thursday and Saturday nights. A second hand grand piano was purchased from Palings, on a week's trial, for £59.

Calling of the card continued to be a popular event and it was announced on 2 April 1933 that all bets on the Doncaster and Sydney Cup would be considered course bets but, to protect the Club's legal position, strangers or non-members would not be admitted under any circumstance.

Constant pressure from members resulted in the first public telephone being installed in October 1933.

Dominoes received a fillip with the inauguration of the Cootes Cup, and in this year Jim Samuels and Percy Marks, one time exhibitor of subscription lists both donated trophies to the swimming club.

Around this time the most inspiring sight for members could be seen through their own windows facing Hyde Park where the imposing outlines of the Archibald Fountain were taking shape, a symbol of defiance against present adversity and of hope for the future. In like manner, the current air of gloom was nowhere apparent within the Club. Two sunlamps, newly invented symbols of affluence, were installed at the swimming pool at a cost of £64.4s. A suggestion that ladies be allowed the use of the pool between 6:30 and 7:30 on Tuesday mornings was unanimously rejected by the Committee."

A limited number of the Club's history 1858-1983 is available for sale at the office.

APOLOGIES

The Editor's apologies go to Mr John Kenny (letters to the Editor - March edition of newsletter) for referring to him as Mr John Kennedy.

ADVERTISING

Quarter page advertisements are now being taken by the Club for inclusion within each Newsletter. If you feel the direct contact to all members of the Club would be of assistance to your company, then contact the Editor on 264 6111 and enquire as to the rates charged. Naturally these advertisements will be limited to the space available and on a first in first published basis.

CLUB LETTERS

I attended the Club for lunch on Monday last together with a member now living in Surfers Paradise and an overseas guest. There was a table in the dining room occupied by about twenty.

I was surprised to see that most of those seated at the table had their jackets removed and hung on the backs of the chairs and after inquiring at the office about dress rules I was informed that they had been relaxed.

It is appalling that standards have been relaxed and I, as a member of some years, do not agree that the standards that have made Tattersall's a prestige club should ever be lowered.

A J Walker

I recently entertained several overseas visitors at the Club and felt I would like to write and congratulate you and the staff on the high standard of the meals everybody in the party were served.

The expressions of complete satisfaction and excellence were unanimous.

The only drawback was the very few members using the dining room and enjoying such a high standard.
